The evidence proved that the coupling from the engine to the hydrant had burst and the water dashed against the glass gauge, which fractured it, and the hot steam rush-ing out prevented the engineers from manip-ulating the engine to avoid the damage.

These grounds, coupled with the good record of the men, caused the case to be dismissed.

Capt. Kittson, of Engine 46, reported that Fireman W. H. Jones, of Engine Company 1, and John J. Larkin, of Fngine 46, rendered voluntary assistance at the fire on the 25th inst., and their services were very valuable. The Commissioners ordered their names to be placed upon the roll of merit.

Before young O'Reilly was nineteen he was appointed on the staff of the Express. He was for years one of the political reporters of the Herald, but for the last few years had been a valued member of the Times staff.

Hadn't it been promulgated that the Bernard Rourke Association excursion was bound to go to-day, rain or shine?

And wasn't the fun to be had more than commensurate to the loss of picnic finery? So they came down from the Tenth Assembly District and jostled each other in the rain

During his journalistic career he was a cor-respondent at Washington and Albany, and had reported the proceedings of National and State conventions. He was well in-formed on all public questions of the day. Last winter he had an attack of scarlet fever and pneumonia, and his life was in the balance for over a week. THE PARK GATES WILL OPEN.

OF BOTH SIDES.

The Park Commissioners Have Received Letters from Property Owners in Opposition to the Opening-Views of Alderman Divver of the Committee Holding Yesterday's Resolutions.

In regard to THE EVENING WORLD's fight to secure the admission of the people to Stuyvesant Park in the evening, Alderman Divver said this morning: "I am confident that the gates to Stuyvesant Park will be opened to the public in the evening before Aldermen Divver, Murray and Cowie were appointed a committee by the Board of Aldermen yesterday to present the resolutions of the Board to the Park Commissioners. These resolutions will first be presented to the Mayor, with the request that he sign them.

"To whom will belong the credit of opening the gates?" was asked of the Alderman.
"To THE EVENING WORLD, by all means."
he answered, empatically. "This is another trumph for THE EVENING WORLD in favor of the people.

"I can not understand how those gates have been closed in the evening all these years. To me it is a mystery as well as an outrage on the public. It is plain that old Peter Stuyvesant intended the park for the use of the people at all times. The deed shows that he wanted to do this.

"I have no doubt the Park Commissioners will set very soon in the matter and "I have no doubt the Park Commissioners will act very soon in the matter and open the gates. We will present the reaccution passed by the Poard of Aldermen to the Mayor very soon and then will see the Park Commissioners, and I think they will open the gales of the park on the request of the Board of Aldermen whether we secure the Mayor's approval of not.

"However, I think Mayor Hewitt will sign the resolutions and we will have plain sailing.
There is no reason in the world why we should not, as has been clearly shown in THE

"The people will, I think, appreciate the park, for they have been deprived of it so long."
Through a misunderstanding of the hour
the committee appreciated at the citizens."

Through a misunderstanding of the hour the committee appointed at the citizens' mass meeting in Stuyvesunt Hall to wait upon the Park Commission did not appear till after the Board had adjourned to-day, but Commissioners Robb and Towle were still at the office of the Denartment, and M. J. Kelley and John Begg, of the committee, presented the resolutions of the Stuyvesant Hall meeting, and urged that action be taken at an early moment.

at an early moment.

Mr. Robb said: "No injustice has been done to any one, for no one has ever asked me to open the park; but since this agitation began, three or four persons owning property on the square have asked that they be heard in opposition to the plan. We will hear both sides at our meeting on Wednesday next.
"As for me, I think the people should have what they ask. I think the gates should be open. That is what the parks are for." Mr. Kelley urged that the moral aspect of the question was favorable to the petitioners, as a lighted park properly policed was a pre-ventation of wrong-doing within its pre-cincts, while Livingston and Rutherford cincts, while Livingston and Rutherford places and Second avenue were now so dark at night that ladies feared to pass that way.

Commissioner Towle said: "I think I am safe in saying that the people of the Sixteenth Assembly District will have their park. Their reque t is a most reasonable one. The park certainly should be open till 10 o'clock at night."

Commissioner Robb said: "Thirty years ago the neighborhood of this park was the most aristocratic and exclusive in this city. Then the park was inclosed and gated at the request of those who supposed they would always own all the property in the neighborhood.

"The tenement-house is a thing of later event. The character of the neighborhood is changed, and the park ought to be opened; but we cannot presume to open the gates without hearing both sides. Come next week nd present your case.

Arbitration of Sugar Bountles.

London, Aug. 1 .- The Austrian Govern ment has agreed to sign the protocol abolish ing sugar bounties, but it makes its signing conditional on the United States and Brazil agreeing to the treaty so that the abolition of counties shall be general.

This is impracticable, so far as' the nited States are concerne part in the international conference on the subject, and were not officially represented therein.

MAYOR HEWITTS ANGELS.

At noon to-day Mr. Francis M. Scott, a tion Counsel, and Gen. James C. Duane, a retired Chief Engineer, U. S. A., appeared at the Mayor's office and were warmly greeted by His Honor, who yesterday appointed them Aqueduct Commissioners,

Their appointment papers were made out and Mayor Hewitt at once proceeded to administer the usual oath of office,

" Gen. Duane." said Mayor Hewitt to the new Commissioner, "did you seek the office or did the office seek you?"

Gen. Duane, who is about half an inch taller than the Mayor, and who is a thin man with long gray beard and small graveyes, replied: "I know I didn't seek the office."

Then the Mayor asked Mr. Scott the same question.
"You know best, Mr. Mayor," replied

Commissioner Scott.

"Yes," put in the Mayor, "I had to persuade you to take the position."

"The worst of it is," ejaculated Commissioner Scott, "I received $7,200 in the Corporation Counsel's office, and I will only receive $5,000 as a member of the Aqueduct Bard."

Mayor Hewitt glanced at Gen. Duane and exclaimed: "There is a good deal of fight in little men." Then be laughed and laughed. "I will tell you all a story," he went on, "When I was in Congress I was introduced by an Ohio Congressman to one of his con stituents.

agony of fear: for from the third finger was missing the talismanne ring.

When and where had she lost it? and how could she now find the courage to confess all to Aroold? She rose and dressed, revolving and re-revolving this problem in her min.

The day wore on, Her friend, Mrs. Houghton, ran in to scold her for her desertion, but her pale face and trembing tones made good her paea of sudden i has.

At nightfall Arnold sarrived. She threw theself in his arms in a burst of nervous weeping.

"Arnold," she said, "I have a bitter confession to make. It is fitting you should hear it now."

He histened, with arms folded across his breast, while she told him all the story of that fated night.

When she had finished, her husband silently drew a paper from his pocket and showed her a paragraph offering a reward for the arrest of a thief and swendler known as the Count Fanotti.

Trembling, and with downcast eyes, Alice dared not ask forgiveness. It seemed impossible that it should be granted; until, taking a step forward, her husband drew her into wakening remorse.

"Never mind, little wife. I'll make it up for although a wife of almost two years, her fond, indulgent husband had for the first time said nay to an openly expressed wish. The bail of the season—a grand and fashionable assemblage estame in the hour came round for Arnold's when the hour came round for Arnold's home-coming, he missed his usual warm and he said that he should prefer she did not attend.

She was only twenty! Let this much be said in extenuation of the two great tears that rose to the brown eyes and slowly trickled down the pretty face, spisshing on the incruning of the ball. "And why need that make any difference?" pursued Mrs. Houghton, a betwitching little widow, some few years her friend's senior. "I will share my escort with you senior. 'I wil Count Fanotti.'

The ball was at its height as the clock rang out the hour of midnight; but, for the first time in her life, light and gaiety were dis-tasteful. A hundred times she wished herself at home.

I will tell Arnold. I have been already punished," she whispered to hersef, as she stood a moment alone in a quiet corner.

"You look more like a nu than a mermaid—rather like one who had foresworn the vanities of the world than a siren to tempt men to their destruction," said a voice close at her elbow; "though to the latter I know no one more fitted." " Sir!" she exclaimed, indignantly, recog-nizing, as she spoke, the count standing at her elbow.
